

Yendor Ridge Gardens

Rhonda, Tony and Andrew Veroeven, Windsor WI

Welcome to Yendor Ridge Gardens, located in Windsor, WI, an American Hemerocallis Society Display Garden and Official Monarch Waystation. These are the gardens of Rhonda, Tony, and Andrew Veroeven. Rhonda is the primary collector and dabbles with hybridizing of Diploids. Andrew is the real hybridizer of the family and specializes in big tetraploids. Tony is the good sport and wheelbarrow and mulch technician.

Yendor Ridge is located on about 1/3 of an acre on a suburban lot. Don't let the small size of the garden fool you, over 2,000 named cultivars are grown on this small property along with a few seedlings (it is usually more seedlings, but due to Presidential travel and Andrew's study schedule, not a lot of hybridizing has been done), Rhonda tests for four different hybridizers, there are guest plants from Dianna Gossard, Steve Williams, and Jerry and Lisa Marlatt, there are three carnivorous bogs, a small frog pond, and loads of rusty metal art (Rhonda's favorite) some of which Andrew has made, a large bat home, and some very cool tree species sprinkled in.

There is also a sales bed filled with named cultivars for sale. Attendees can purchase plants with exact cash, check, Venmo, or PayPal. Some of Andrew's metal art will also be available for sale during the tour as well. (Both of which will help fund his semester of study abroad to New Zealand).
